Bay-ard, ex-secretary of state, and now United States ambassador to the court of St. James, for high crimes and misdemeanors. The grounds advanced in the resolutions were the utterances of Mr. Bayard delivered before the Edinburgh Philosophical institute Nov. 7. In this speech Mr. Bayard spoke of "protection" as a form of "state socialism," and said that it had done more to "foster class legislation," "breed in-equality," "corrupt public life," "lower the tone of national representation," and "divorce ethics from politics," than any other single cause. Such reflection on the government policy by a United States ambassador before a foreign audience, the resolution recited, was in serious disregard of his proprieties and obligations and calculated to injure our national reputation. It concluded by instructing the foreign affairs committee, which was empowered to send persons and papers to investigate and report "by impeachment or other-wise." Mr. Barrett's resolution had been preceded by one of his colleague, Mr. McCall (R., Mass.), in a milder

The young fellows, however, leaned to ward Major McDowell, representative at large from Pennsylvania in the Fiftythird congress, and in no long time a great combination of states was formed, and the officers were practically elected before the caucus met. Major McDow-ell is 50 years old, a printer by trade and a banker by profession.

Some folks are mean enough to say that the Democrats who are denoming Cleveland so furiously are those only whose last chance at the pie counter is exhausted, but of two of them, and they are the hottest, it must be said handsome cropon the entire surface of that they have been consistent from the start, and with them is joined a Popu list who is notorious if not famous. Last February Representative Bailey of Texas declared that his first work in the Hoods of torrential elequence | Firty-fourth congress would be to draw up articles of impeachment against the president, and more than one good lawyer says that on one of the points be brings forward he can prove a clear viosuggested by the young and lation of law. He still declares that he own by the old! Besides all will make a fight on the diversion of the are at least the average gold received from bond issues to the payment of current expenses, and on other acts which he thinks stretched the an army of young fellows law to the breaking point. I observe that the conservatives have aheady begun to talk of Judge Bailey, as we call him, as a "crank," a "freak," and a 'young man who has been puffed up by receiving more benors than he could boar at his age.

Look Out For Breakers. Senator Tillman of South Carolina intimated the first day his title was clear that he expected to devote himself during the first year of his service to the massacre of the president. The inference is that he will assail Mr. Cleveland on all possible occasions and on every possible pretext; that he will show his whole foreign policy to be posillaniuscus, his boud issues illegal, his diversion of the borrowed money to current expenses a high crime and a misdemeanor, and his proposition to retire the greenbacks to be a compound of the Worst heresies of John Sherman and the bankers. If he does one-quarter what he as promised, there will be fun. The thord man who has announced his intention to pulverize Cleveland is Hou. M. W. Howard, the new Populist from Alabama. Impeachment is what he propeses, and if he and Judge Bailey work together on this line, it will surely be the most astonishing case of politic; bringing extremes together that this country has seen for many a year. If Mr. Howard is not belied, he has declared that he will get his ridiculous book printed in The Congresional Record as part of one of his speeches and that he will purposely give occasion for that Tennessee member who has threatened him to do his shooting right in the solutions radical enough to house. The world had its laugh when Punch advertised "Important Advice to Schuyler Colfax and his came | People Contemplating Matriage," and when the advice was applied for, returnasville. Nevertheless the sentiment is very and were more or less vexed strong in favor of still more inter-measures to the veterans. And here is another point on which Senator Tillman promises to be savage ly explicit. He has a formidable let of figures to prove that of the $1,900,000,-660 or thereabouts paid out in pensions the south has paid at least $600,000,000. which is more than the amount of nidly, hesitated nearly a min- northern capital invested in southern mines and manufactures. He flatly declares that the south hasn't received 3 per cent of the pension money, in which he is very badly mistaken, but just the same he will probably make a great row about it. So far as I have talked with the new men, they are all in favor of being very liberal toward the veterans, and Representative Stone of Pennsylvania has a very complicated proposition for assuing bonds on a system somewhat like that of life insurance to make the veteran perfectly safe for the rest of his life and put the matter beyond all contingencies of future legislation. At least that is what the advocates of his scheme say it will do. Incidentally it may be added that Mr. Stone is in favor of expending $100,000,000 per year on internal improvements, and that the canal advocates generally are quite enthused over President Cleveland's recent appointment of a commission to study and report on the subject. I am a little surprised at the number of the new men who are quite familiar with Washington. Several of them have been here as government clerks, and at least two were educated at Georgetown university. Of the former clerks none has had a more diversified career than Hen. A. M. Hardy of the Second Indiana. His first dash after coming out of tchool was with the noble army of reconstructors who fancied they could build up stable republican governments a the rains of the Confederacy in the e simply gets the laugh and guli states. Crepon is the mother of source of various and novel textures, some of which are unrecognizable as proceeding from this source, so completions by its absence is the family likeness. Many of the new va-rieths have a shot effect, in which three or even four colors are introduced. Silk is freely introduced in these woolen crepons, chiefly in a series of closely placed small loops, much enriching the effect. Others are in wool, silk and mohair, a mixture of three separate materials which promises to have considerable success The extraordinary name "gros sanglet" has been given by the manufacturers to a which is silk. Stripes and checks appear to be equally in favor. Tartans are mjoying a longer reign than usual. Green and black is a favorite combination of col ers, and the varying width of the black lines, together with the good effect pro-duced by having some of them intensely black and others less so, only the warp be ing in the somber tone, is very artistic. The soft yet brilliant tone of orange that is in such request just now appears in onof these tartans in conjunction with brown, modified in some of the lines in the same way as the black just described. Cloth, vignone, zibeline, boucle goods, Scotch tweeds and homespuns, silks, sat ins, brocades and velvets-in fact, nearly every variety of woven fabric that has eve been employed at all is now fashionable. und often the characteristics of two or more kinds of goods are combined in one.

An illustration is given of a walking gown of mastic cloth. The godet skirt is ritumed with a silk cording, which form motifs. The tight bodico has a fancy plastron of chestnut velvet and two quiles of the same material, which follow the direc tion of the darts. Plastron and quilles are outlined with cording. A velvet belt encircles the walst. The seams of the molor sleeves are covered with cording, which forms motifs on the cuffs.

The question of the theater hat is still being agitated in Paris, and until it is settled there it will probably remain open everywhere else. The Comedia Francaise has inaugurated a hat checking system for women by which every hat delivered to the attendant in the cloakroom is provide with a private box of its own during the performance, and ladies who sit in the orchestra must wear either no last or a mere arcingy for one. hats is rather a long and tellous process as it involves more or less attention to the har and the aid of a mirror and as American audience, characteristically hurried and impatient, would hardly put up with such a system. By far the simplest way out of the difficulty is for women the ater goers to wear a small, flat bonnet that will be in nobody's way and will yet be enough of a head covering to be worn through the street. Theater bonnets are the simplest things in the world to make and the most becoming after they are made A few flowers, a bit of Jace and an oran mental pin are quite chough for the purpose if the bair is prettily arranged for the reception of the bonnet. A very pretty Paris model was composed almost entirel of small, leafless velvet roses of a bright red, arranged around a tiny spangled grown of no particular shape. Violetr which are again in style, might be simflarly combined with gulpure or green flowers with jet.

The walking costume shown in the llinstration is of platinum gray bure. The godet skirt has two quilles in front, of triped gray and moss green velvet laid in embroidery. The gray bodice has a shore rippled basque edged with black astrakhan. The bodies opens over a plastron of mess green velvet and has a wide, fold-

In explanation of this call upon the reader's imagination, a writer in Poputhis great wombat, now in the Adelaide museum in South Australia, were found at a place called Lake Mulligan, a dismal'spot. The so called lake is no lake at all, except after very heavy rains. It is at all other times a plain of black and, over which lies like snow an incrustation of salt, a treacherous covering through which one is apt to break and sink forever out of sight in the mire beneath. The country surrounding it is a vast stony desert void of life. Here sundstorms occur terrible to think of, and the midday heat is like that of a furnace, 414 degrees-as our thermomster registers—temperature in the shade.

Yet here a band of devoted men have been hard at work for months at a time, and many new discoveries of great importance have been and are being made years ago.

Gigantic kangaroos and the remains of enormous birds are being found. The scientific men in charge of the work think the place the greatest discovery of the kind in the century. More than 100 different extinct birds and mammals entirely new to science have already been represented in the bones found here.

Latest Product of the Electric Furnace.

When it was first proved that by heatng a mixture of coal or lime or charcoal and chalk in an electric furnace a compound resulted which upon being thrown into water evolved acetylone, the gas companies were naturally clated. They looked upon the new discovery as a cheap and easily procurable substance for mixing with their own product, and thus raising its illuminating power. According to the Chicago Record, acety lene is, however, turning out to be an even more extraordinary substance than has been suspected. It has so many strings to its bow that its exploiters are presumably abandoning the problem of curiching gas and are actively engaged in demonstrating that by means of it the cheaper manufacture of innumera ble substances which are used in the arts, but which up to the present have and the products of pure chemistry, can be achieved.

In brief, it is told that, by varying processes, acetylene may be transmuted into benzino, aniline, carbolic acid, picric acid, antelibrin, naphthaline, alco bol, prussic acid, oxalic acid and aldehyde

When, therefore, it is considered that from acetylene can be derived whole systems of dyes, medicines, essences, perfumes, poisons, explosives, not to mention cheap whisky, it will be seen that the latest product of the electric furnace has a utility out of all proportion greater than that which can be derived from ts peculiar light giving powers.

Bandeaux Going Out.

The latest report of Parisian hairdressing, as it is to be seen at sofrees of elegant society, is that the hair is drawn nn straight and rather high in front, with a few small curls or rings on the forehead in the corner and waved, of course. At the back the nape is well defined, the chignon placed rather high and twisted with an artistic case, but at present no ornaments or jewels, just an sigret or a bow of ribbon.

THE HOUSEHOLD. Genuine English Plum Padding For Christmas and For Any Other Day,

For Christmas a real English plant pudding formula should be observed by those who comeout this dainty for themselves and put not their trust in the the queer creatures that exist in that ready made article, alluringly convenqueer country is one called a wombat, | ient though that may be. Here is an exwithout doubt the funniest, furriest, cellent example of the former: Threefattest little mammal in the whole quarter pound raisins, three-quarter world. It is a great deal like a very pound currants, 6 ounces candied peel, 3 onnces citron, a pound finely chopped amiable. It is very easily temed. In beef suct, 4 onnces chopped apples, a pound flour, 6 ounces bread crumbs, half pound sugar, 7 es . half pint of the neck. milk, half a pint of cream, 2 glasses of brandy, half ouncê cloves pounded, einnamon and grated nutneg, a teaspoonful of salt and a little grated lomon ncel. Mix thoroughly and boil the pudding in a cloth for 415 hours.

Sauce for this pudding, to be served in a boat: Scald an ounce of Jordan almonds and 6 bitter ones, free them from their skins, put them in a mortar with 4 onnees sugar, a teasprouful of brandy: pound them into a pulp, remove them into a small stewpan, add a gill of thick double cream, or 2 yolks of raw eggs, and whip the sauce with a wire whisk over a slow fire until it becomes a substantial smooth froth. For use on Christmas day brandy is generally poured over and lighted just as the pudding is carried to the table.

For an everyday plana pudding, much less expensive, and which an optimistic individual pronounces "perfectly wholesome and not to be feared," try the following: A cup ground rice, a cup flour, a cup suet, a cup sugar, a cup raising (stoned), a cup milk, a tablespoonful vinegar, a teaspoonful carbonate of soda. Stir well together and boil three hours.

The Old Virginia Cook's Mince Ples.

A great many people cat mince pies, but there are not a great many who know how they are built. The old Virther that verily deserves to be called ginia housekeeper when she wishes to make glad the hearts of her guests gets the leaf and kidney fat from a well ros. Here is a picture of the head of one grown, corn fed bullock, which she chops fine. Then she gets a lot of raisins and currents, which are washed and picked; some citron and slices that up you can see the present dreadful falling fine; likewise some apples. She mixes this up with a dust of flour, a proper amount of granulated sugar, and after clandestinuly chucking in a couple of brandied peaches, chopped up, she pours lar Science News tells that the bones of in enough French brandy to make the whole mass jelly. These ingredients are well stirred together. Now for the pastry. This is the hardest part. The flour must be mixed with ice water, some powdered crackers are to be added, and after it is kneaded into a dough and worked hard with the fists it is rolled out flat, and lumps of lard are plowed into it with the thumb. These lumps of lard are worked into the dough ad infinitum. If too much is put in, however, the crust is too greasy and brittle. It must be dry and flaky. Nowput a layer of dough in a tin pan, flatten it down, slice away the jagged edges, and in goes the mince meat. Now, then, another layer of dough on top; press it down around the rim, decorate it with ents according to artistic faucies and bake with a quick oven. There you have your of animals that lived many thousands of real mines pie, says the Baltimore American.

A Person's Desire Is His Paradise.

A timely comment on Christmas giving is found in a paragraph in a letter which Bismarck, the "Iron Chancellor." but most tender and devoted husband, wrote to his sister asking her to buy some presents for his wife. The first suggestion was a piece of jewelty, and he says of it, "She (Princess Bismarck) wishes for an opal heart like the one you have, and a person's desire is his paradise." No more apt Christmas hint than this could be found-"a person's desire is his paradise.''

Luxurious Purs Fashioned For the Feminine Multitude This Season.

The fur coat is no longer a clumsy. beary gurnent, beneath whose weight v. o can scarcely drag ourselves along. It is fashioned with as much skill as the cloth jacket. It fits in the best sense of the word, and it is invariably invested with some degree of novelty. Sable and musk are being used with special sucress, and there are ideal opera cloaks made of black satin lined throughout with sable, with monster sleeves of aniroir velvet and a large sable collar round Among the more modest capes is a pleasing one of dark blue velvet, closely covered round with natrow bands of marten. Round the collar is a full of velvet, and the lining is of gray and white squirrel of superior order. This model is really good, and it may be copied most successfully in scalskin with narrow bands of sable and a lining of suble.

In English fur fashious the Eton jacker promises to be wonderfully popular made in sealskin with the collar of chinchilla, or in suble with a collar of scalskin, the latter being rather new and reversing the general order of things furry. A delightful little sealskin jacket, which, however, is not in Eton shape, but boasts a short basque, is double breasted, with two rows of buttons and a large collar of chinchilla.

Chinchilla certainly holds the ear of the multitude femmine this season. It

There is no wonderful change in the ordinary three-quarter length scalskin jacket, which is either single or double breasted and has sleeves large enough to contain those which apportain to dresses, making, as they do, liberal demands on the outer garment, whatever it may be.

neck as to the collars—so high that at neck-but many sealskins have the turndown shape, placed, however, on a deep collar band, so that the throat is well covered.

This year there is a tendency to blend some beantiful brocade or chine silk with the fur. For instance, a cape of scal has, a yoke of broad tail, with appliques of cream guipure lace, picked out with sequins. A stylish little mink cape, full on the shoulders, is set into an original yoke of paidley custimere, embroidered with tiusel and iridescent sequins and showing mink tails, aranged at intervals down the front.

Ermine is used as linings and trim mings to the handromest skins.

The new scalskin capes are very wide and full, standing well out from the fignro, and the novel idea of jet trimmings s seen on some. One has or naments and hams of jet on the shoulders and strags of jet across the front.

Stylish Materials.

Among materials that French modistes are employing are velvet conche-(novelty), velvets with cashiners shades, also new and used for blouses; plush moire, rich brozades in the Genea style. with dull ground and shaded velvet flowers; shaded moires (also new), etc. Among the woolens are cloth, serge, coarse white canvas, velvetoens, oither plain or robbed-these last for walking. Almost any color can be worn, but bleu de saves and blen de roi are favorito shades of blue, and also various chades of dark green are much used.

Do you doubt that hundreds of such cases reported to us as caused by "Golden Medical Discovery" were genuine cases of that dread and fatal disease? You need not take our word for it. They have, in nearly every instance, been so pronounced by the best and most experienced home physicians, who have no interest whatever in misrepresenting them, and who were often strongly prejudiced and advised against a trial of "Golden Medical Discovery," but who have been forced to confess that it surpasses, in cutative power over this fatal unitady, all other medicines with which they are acquainted. A Gold Knocker, James Payne, in The Independent, says that at Ottford, in Kent, there was formerly a palace of the archbishops of Canterbury in which Wolsey is said to iave held his court. ''It was but a small place and is now a farmhouse, pictoresque enough, but exhibiting no special signs of prosperity. The other day, however, this little incident happened: The farmer sent for a carpenter to do some odd jobs about the house, and among other things to mend the knocker. The man took it off and said, after a close examination of it, 'Do you know what this knocker is made of?' 'Why, brass, I suppose.' 'No, it is pure gold.' And it was. Think of the years that that rich prize has hung at the mercy of every tramp!"

TERRIBLE SUFFERING OF CREW OF THE BURNED SHIP PARTHIA.

One Steals Fresh Water, Leaves Out Plug and Finally Dies From Drinking Brine

The three masted ship Parthia of Bath, Me., sailed from Liverpool for San Franci-co with a cargo of 3,400 tons of coal on June 25.

On her last trip Captain Charles G. Carter, a down east shipmaster, took chargo of the Parthia, sailing with a cargo of American wheat for Liverpool.

When the ship was about 1,000 miles out on the north Atlautic on the voyage to San Francisco, a carrier pigeon, hungry and nearly exhausted, flew into the rigging. The bird was caught and fed by the sailors. The pigeon bore no mesauge, but around one leg was a silver

It was thought by the scamen that the jugeon would bring good luck to the Parthus. The crew christened the mrd Mike, and it became a favorite.

The coming of the pigeon was the only incident to break the monotony of the long voyage around the Horn until the noon of Sept. 27, when a sailor discovered smoke coming out of the after hold, near the mizzenmast. The ship was then 450 miles west of Chile. Captain Carter said at once it must he a case of spontaneous combustion m the coal, the beginning of so many fires that have destroyed great ships. The crew couldn't get at the blaze, for if they opened the hatches, the flames would burst forth and every opening would be a volcano. Captain Carter called all hands aft.

There were 27 men. He told them their only hope lay in taking to the beats. Three were at erre provisioned and equipped with sails and nautical instruments. Plenty of fresh water was stowed aboard. It was determined to stand by the ship as long as possible, and she was storred toward the land.

The next day the smoke, heat and gas ong that there is something in it, and had become almost overpowering. The the oil land will have to be paid for cabins were too lot to stay in. Nothing oald be deno inside the ship, and the water in the butts was so left that it had to be couled before drinking.

A trong gale had sprung out of the actionest and blow with fury for two On the second day of the storm he whele slop became so uncomfortasle and preafe that Captain Carter gave ominant for all hands to take to be eats at 6 p. m. The doomed Parthis was then 100 miles from the Chil between 2 and 3 p. m. next day, and did not sight them again. The sariors had constantly to barl the longboat, and their belongings, except food, water, clathing and instruments, were thrown into the sea.

Carter lest sight of the other two boats

After a luli of days and another storm of 21 hours, the captain's longboat landed at Juan Fernandez Oct. 9, after eight days of exposure. The boat with the first mate and eight more sailors arrived at the island the day after Alfred de Red, a man of German parentage, represents the Chilcan government on Robinson Crasoe's island. He has the title of governor, and lords over the 40 or 15 persons now on the island.

Captain Carter speaks gratefully of the governor's treatment of the Parthia's distressed scamen. Governor de Rod, Captain Carter says, has for years behiended from 30 to 35 shipwrecked American scamen a season, and has never received the slightest recognition from the government of the United States. On Oct 19 a Chilean man-of war put in from Valparaiso to inquire after Captain Carter and the men. The commander hought a tale of suffering from Second Mate Crocker's boatload of satiors more thrilling than that of the others. Mate Crocker had become scared during the first blow after leaving the Parthia, and had steered due east for the Chilean coast. The water in the cask g t low, and his men were put on short allowance. There was plenty of salt nork, but they could not eat it without drink. On the sixth day out David Jones, a Welsh seaman, who could not speak English, thinking nobody was looking, stole a long drink out of the cask. He forgot to put back the plug, and all the water ran out of the cask. Next day the nine men had not a drop of water to drink.

The lad confessed, and the sail rs were for cutting his throat and throwing him overboard, but Mate Crocker told them Jones should stay in the boat as long as he did.

For seven days the boat went with out water, and the sufferings of the men were frightful. Again and again they attempted to take up the salt water, but Mate Crocker restrained them. On the sixth day after the water was exhausted Jones leaned over the side and took a long, deep draft of sea water. He fell into the bottom of the boat in a terrible paroxysm and died after five hours of suffering. They threw him overboard then, fate having worked the punishment they had in mind to inflict.

That same day, 60 miles from Val paraiso, the boat encountered the steel bull of the burned coal ship Garfield. They recognized her, for the Garfield had loaded with coal for Valoaraise at the next pier in Liverpool and had sailed at the same time.

It was a coincidence of fate. The Garfield had been deserted for the same reason as the Parthia on Oct. 9.

Mate Crocker boarded the hall in seach of water, but the butts had burned out of the steel shell. Next day the pout reached Valparaiso, and a war vessel was sent after the other boats.

come in a little later. On the second visit they found Secretary C. C. Mason and made known to him their errand. Mr. Mason met them with one of his blandest smiles, and gently broke to them the information that the Nypano property was now in the bands of John Tod, as an officer of the common pleas court of Summit county. A pleasant conversation folowed, in which honors were even. Mr Babst produced hisorder and incidental ly dropped a remark about the inadvisability of risking a contempt of court proceedings. Mr. Mason came back at him with the statement that in this instance contempt of court might be a two-edged sword. Mr. Tod at any rate had the advantage of being in possession as an officer of the court. To the polite demand that he vacate and yield possession, Mr Mason returned a firm refusal Receiver Tod, he explained, was in New York, but in his absence be proposed to hold the fort until otherwise directed by Mr Tod, his counsel,

The separate waist, or blouse bodice, remains in favor for evening wear and for dinners. The modern woman's wardrobe a almost sure to contain a black skirt of silk or satin, which serves as the lower half of many different costumes. Bodices of mousseline de sole or of the softer and less easily crumpled chiffon are much in favor for dinner wears and for small evening occasions. Colors and black are employed for these corsages, which need not be elaborate, as the diaphaneus goods lend themselves so well as shirrings and dra peries that much trimming is unnecessary although it may be added if it is desired.

Very pretty walking costumes are made entirely of cloth and consist of a gown and outside maket to match. social functions by New York women. But there is a redeeming element of satisfaction in this demonstration of fashonable dress, in the fact that every conceivable fancy which taste, style, money the fabric of the season's fashions, and jackets, are merely a passing fad. there is hope for the slender purse in the cheaper materials and varied comlanations which aid so materially in making over old gowns. Fine velveteen. which comes in levely soft colors and aquisite oriental patterns, is a fashionable substitute for the more expensive silk velvet, and quite the proper thing for entire waists and sleeves, vests and wide collars, while the plain colors are the waists of gowns which have none on the skirt, while very short pieces put on in strips without any special reason except to farnish an excuse for a fancy button ar either end are a part of the cheme of trimming.

Afternoon gowns worn by society women are dressy combinations of cloth, velver, silk, lace and fur. The tailor made gowns with short inunty coats or ong redingotes and plain vests with shirt fronts worn so much in the morning are decidedly in the minority. Ekirts, with rare exceptions, are quite plain, but extremely full and very carefully fitted around the hips. They hang in soft, graceful folds, set out at the bortom by a narrow facing of haircloth.

The most stylish bodice for cloth gowns is a tight fifting coat with a short asque, which is either flat on the hips, with a double box plait in the back, finted all around, or cut into postilious or tabs, which are rounded or square at the bottom and trimmed around with hand embroidery or the very narrowest

How to keep the during room table from being burned and blistered by hot dishes is a matter of grave consideration. A hush cloth of plain canton flannel neatly bound and spread smoothly over the table under the linea cloth is: popular one. There are also hush cloths mushin covers. In cases where the dishes are particularly hot an ashestus mat may also be placed under the hush cloth directly beneath the dish. In this way the table may be kept a thing of beauty for growth. But it hasn't been so with Pearline: Pearline's success has been a wonder, from the start. All the more so when you consider the many poor imitations of it, which claim to make washing easy. These things tend to confuse people, of course. They're forced on the public by peddlers, prizes, substitution, etc. No doubt they're often thought to -be the same as Pearline. We protest. Don't judge
